WHAT A YEAR

The 2014/15 year for Volunteering Tasmania (VT) can only be described as dynamic. In addition to the usual ebbs and flows, there have been some distinct successes and challenges.

The highlight of our year was the announcement by the State Government of VT’s Peak body status, a dream we have held for 22 years. This cements our place as the organisation that can help to grow and nurture volunteering in Tasmania. It also brings new responsibility for advocacy work, and we have relished the opportunity to comment on a number of key sector issues.

Prior to the Peak body announcement, we were reeling from a 51% cut to our federal funding. This was a common story across the national network, and along with Volunteering Australia, Volunteering Victoria and Volunteering SA&NT, we made a submission to the Senate Inquiry into Department of Social Services Funding Cuts and participated in the hearing in Canberra.

This year we made a significant contribution at a national level, participating in the review of the National Standards, and project managing the review into the Definition of Volunteering.

We also released our third State of Volunteering Report (SOVR), developed in collaboration with the Institute of Project Management. It presented a comprehensive analysis of the social, economic and cultural value of volunteering in Tasmania, and placed volunteering as Tasmania’s largest industry, contributing nearly $3 billion in benefits to the community.

Our ‘Building Natural Disaster Resilience through Volunteers’ project received funding from the Natural Disaster Resilience Grants Program, and we look forward to providing innovative solutions for recovery and resilience in our communities.

We are very fortunate to have such a dedicated, skilled and passionate group of volunteers and staff. Our thanks goes to each and every one of our team members.

In the coming year you will notice a number of changes in the way we provide services to the Tasmanian community: growth of our volunteer referral service, increased volunteer management resources, State-wide volunteer awards, and enhanced Member benefits.

There is an air of excitement at VT and we look forward to working with you all in 2015/16.
